New York Stock Market

New York. September 30.—The modyrate effect produced on the money market by the week's splitting of cash reserves must be explained by the conditions of the credit account amongst Stock Exchange commission houses.

Months ago preliminary loans were taken on time by many houses in fear that the autmun might develop a severe stringency in the money market. The foresightedness of the brokers, like that of the banks, now bears its fruit and helps to escape the consequences which were seen in perspective. The listless and indifferent stock markets have left little demand for the resources thus made available in time loans, and they are put our again in call loans to other borrowers at demand prices. There must be some such explanation for the fact that call loan rates on the last day of the quarter to-day did not go above 3 per cent in spite of a week's outgo of cash estimated at $16,000,000 to $12,000,000 out of reserves that carried an actual surplus of only $17,500,00 ast Saturday. The financing of the $170,000,000 dividend and interest payments for October is assumed to have made large demands upon bank credits as well this week.

The Shipments of cash during the week by express seem to have taken the comparatively small sum of balance from the banks, but the $9,313,000 loss on Subtreasury operations reflects interior money demands to a large extent. Drafts on New York banks from interior correspondents for payments to the government on account of internal revenue taxes have been on a large scale, this being a usual incident of the season of crop moving demand for currency.
